VILLAGE PREPPER

Below we have compiled a list of possible disasters. The following disasters may or may not affect you in your area, but you can use this list to prioritize the ones that may.

First, We Distinguish the Reach of a Disaster

Reach	Description
Personal	These are events that cause you or your family some type of distress, possibly requiring you to use backup funds or short-term preps or stay in an alternate location. Typical events such as these would be a loss of a job or house fire.
Local	Your block, subdivision, apartment, school, or area where you work gets disrupted in some way. Power goes out to your neighborhood, your city is flooded, an ice storm in your county. This could mean your city, county, or state.
Regional	Typical examples would be California wildfires, Midwestern floods, hurricanes, or earthquakes. Multiple states could be affected but it is larger than just your city/state.
National	US financial crisis, pandemics, or anything that can potentially affect the entire country from functioning effectively.
Global	Typically, not likely and something you would see in the movies. But worth mentioning.
